Catcher Willie Fischer's Showing Behind Bat The One Ray of Sunshine in Dahlen's Path

The Dodgers are having a tot of hard luck these days. They had a pleasant time winning four out of five games from the Phillies, but they returned home only to lose three out of four to the once-despised Braves. The Giants encountered them yesterday, and when the roll-call was read at the Giants encountered them yesterday, and when the roll-call was read at the end of the two games it was found that another one of the star Brooklyn players was on the injured list. He is Charlie Stengel, the greatest slugger on the team and one of the most sensational youngsters that have broken into fast company since the days of Ty Cobb. Stengel greenched his lines in the second game and it will be some time before he is back in the line-up. Each Wheat, the club's star outfielder and rated one of the best nil-around outergardeners in the game, is also absent from the batting order, being laid up from a bruised hand. It's hard telling when he will be on the job again. However, with all this hard luck there is one ray of sunshine gleaming in Bill Dahlen's path. It is the showing of Catcher Willie Fischer, practically a raw recruit. He went to bat three times in the afternoon game and made three falls and scored two runs. His throwing to bases was perfect and he showed good judgment in calling for various kinds of pitching for the different batters. He sure looks like one of the best backstops that have broken into the game since Jim Archer gladdened the hearts of the Cub management.
